MRS. WINTRINGHAM WELCOMED BY HOUSE

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Mrs. Winttingham, the new member for Louth, and widow of the late member, was greeted with cheers when she rose to make her maiden speech from the Opposition benches of the House of Commons last night.

After a humorous reference to the fact that an elector had told her that he voted for her because she was the least harmful candidate, she proceeded to deliver a sound speech on the necessity of wise economy.

Mr. Park Goff, who followed, gracefully congratulated Mrs. Winttingham on her speech, and welcomed her as the first British-born woman to enter the House of Commons.

PRICES OF FOOTWEAR MAY BE STATIONARY

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—That the prices of footwear have reached the lowest level possible for some time to come, was the announcement made at a meeting yesterday of the executive council of the National Retail Shoe Dealers' Association.

This conclusion was based on a thorough investigation of the whole situation affecting the shoe trade. Reports from representatives present from all parts of Canada, indicated that no further reductions could be made for a considerable period, and in fact, the prices in certain lines had recently shown advances.

Mr. Gosnell resided in Nelson for twenty-seven years. He was manager of the Nelson Brewing Company and the Princeton Brewing Company, and was a prominent Conservative, having served on the Provincial executive. He was unmarried.

Trail receives ore from new shippers.

Nelson, B.C., Nov. 10.—Six new shippers, all from the Alcan, sent ore to the Trail smelter during the first week in November.

The week was also notable for one of the heaviest tonnages of the year, 11,307 tons of ore and concentrates being received.

The total receipts for the year to date at Trail stand at 145,508 tons.

B.C. ELECTRIC ASKING CHANGES

Company's Representatives Present Arguments Against Several Provisions of Agreement—Employees' Answers

VANCOUVER, Nov. 10.—Working conditions, including Sunday and holiday overtime, the daily minimum wage guarantee, the payment of arrears, and the payment of overtime "box time" to conductors, all of which the British Columbia Electric Company wishes to change, were considered at the morning session of the conciliation board today. W. G. Murrin and William Saville, for the company, presented the case against these conditions, filling a number of exhibits in connection with each.

"Overtime is a penalty for abnormal hours," declared Mr. Murrin, in taking up the question of overtime. The street railway has to give service on Sunday and holidays because the demand of the public has to be met. The convenience of the men has been carefully studied in making up the Sunday sheets, and the company should not be penalized because the public wants service on Sundays.

"This is one of the little bombshells which was dropped on us in 1913, when the men, according to Mr. Cottrell's version, were so considerate of our decreased earning power."

Mr. Cottrell took exception to the statement that the company was considerate of the convenience of the men in making up its Sunday sheets. He declared that it was the company's convenience that was studied.

"Our employees are the aristocrats of the working class," declared Mr. Murrin, in reply. "Fifty per cent of them own their own homes."

"There is no more attractive job for a man who has a family than the one we offer. This is borne out by the fact that we could fill the positions three times over."

The company files in this connection showing that it cost $48,900 annually to pay the Sunday and holiday overtime. Comparisons with the rates paid in other cities for these days were also filed.

"The additional payment of platform men," declared Mr. Murrin, "means that it is not profitable to operate cars on Sundays and holidays. The cost to the company of these inequitable payments is $5,500 per month. In my opinion the whole of this sum is unfairly paid, and the company should be relieved of the burden."

Under the present agreement, "extra men are to be guaranteed six hours' work per day." The company presented running sheets, schedules, etc., to prove that this was inequitable.

"The proposed minimum of $7.00," declared Mr. Murrin, "but do not believe that this daily minimum is justified. It is not done in any other cities."

This clause, according to exhibits filed, costs the company annually in Vancouver $19,200; in Victoria, $1,325; and in New Westminster, $1,000.

The question of spread-over came up for consideration.

The other clause which was attacked by the company was one which allows conductors making relief on the road to be paid for the ten minutes extra time used for taking out supplies and carrying in their fare boxes, etc.

The company's argument is that since the new fare boxes came in use this ten minutes is no longer needed.

The men replied that this time was as badly needed as before, as the difficulty of buying tickets, securing change, etc., still remained to be done, even though they do not have to carry their fare boxes in and out.

Exhibits were filed covering objection to Clause 17 of the agreement, which allows shop and barn men required to work on shifts other than those specified (which are from 8 to 5) to be paid 5 cents extra per hour.

Mr. Saville, in objecting to this clause, declared that the men were trying to tie the company down to factory conditions.

UKRAINIAN TROOPS REPORTED SUCCESSFUL

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Cecil Harcourt, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, replying to a question in the House of Commons yesterday, stated that the Government had received a report that an anti-Bolshevik revolution had broken out in the southern part of Russia.

He said no information had been received regarding a report that General Petlura, Ukrainian leader, was engineering the revolution from Roumania.

GENEVA, Nov. 10.—The Ukrainian bureau at Bern today announced that Ukrainian troops had surrounded and disarmed the Forty-Fourth Soviet division. A cavalry division of the Red Army at Balta has joined the Ukrainian troops, who are advancing on Kiev and Odessa.

MAY REMOVE INDIANS AT MISSION RESERVE

NORTH VANCOUVER, Nov. 10.—It is probable that definite steps towards removal of the Indian population of the Mission Indian reserve will be taken as the result of a conference between a committee of the city council and Mr. W. E. Ditchburn, inspector of Indian agencies, who came over from Victoria in connection with instructions received from Ottawa.

Inspector Ditchburn stated that steps to remove the Indians would be immediately taken as the result of his conference with the North Vancouver council.

The method that will probably be followed will be in the form of an application to the Exchequer Court for an order for the removal of the Indians, which order can be made under certain sections of the Indian Act in cases where a reserve is located in or very close to a community of 8,000 people or more. If this order can be secured, after adequate provision has been made for the Indians, as in the case of the Songhees reserve at Victoria, it is considered that the most feasible plan would be for the city to take the property from the Dominion Government on a long lease, the council being practically unanimous in stating that it could not, at the present time, consider the purchase of the property.

RIDICULES IDEA OF NEW MINISTER

Lord Chancellor at Guildhall Banquet Combs Lord Haldane's Proposal to Create Ministry of Justice

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Diverting references to the proposed creation of a ministry of justice, upon which a sharp but genial difference of opinion has been expressed between Lord Haldane and the present Lord Chancellor, Lord Birkenhead, were made by Lord Birkenhead at the Lord Mayor's banquet in the Guildhall last night.

"I am unaware that my distinguished predecessor made such a proposal when he sat in my seat," said the Lord Chancellor. "A ministry of justice in this country will only be brought into being over my official corpse. I am, in this country, the minister of justice, and having cast my eye, with I hope, impartial vision over the aspirants to that office, I am unable to discern one who, I think, is likely to discharge them better."

(Laughter.)

"Suppose a layman was appointed," the Lord Chancellor continued, "what authority would he approach his colleagues in the cabinet when he was dealing with those intimate matters and principles affecting the most complicated problems of jurisprudence or financial questions, say, concerning the personnel of the bench? Such matters might not be completely appreciated by a layman, and he would go to his colleagues of the high patronage which is placed in the hands of the Lord Chancellor would be exercised either more wisely or more impartially by a purely political minister, to whom the traditions, conceptions and proprieties of the British bar and the interests of the bench might not so appeal, than by one who would go to his colleagues in the cabinet clothed with the titular and substantial position of one of the head judges in the British Empire."

Lord Birkenhead proceeded to point out how the judges in England alone among the public servants had "had no alleviation having regard to changes in circumstances."

Thereby their official stipends remained as in former times, and added to that this had produced such a result that the members there beginning to ask themselves whether the increased prestige of a judge is sufficient compensation, having regard to their duties and needs. That would be an evil day for the country. I have great hopes that even in these difficult days it will be within my power to announce at an early date some modification of the existing situation."

HUNGARIAN ACTION SATISFIES ALLIES

PARIS, Nov. 10.—Approval was given by the Council of Ambassadors yesterday to the means chosen by Hungary to comply with the Allied demand for amendment of Hungary's legislative act ousting the Hapsburg dynasty so that the possible evasion of the law through the choice of a Hapsburg to the kingship by election might be prevented.

The Budapest Government's proposal was to issue a declaration that no Hapsburg should be eligible to election to the kingship.

PRAQUE, Nov. 9.—President Masaryk today signed an order for demobilization of the Czech-Slovak forces, which had been ordered out in view of the threatening Hungarian situation caused by the coup of former King Charles.

Nervous Breakdown COULDN'T SLEEP NIGHTS

To those on the verge of a nervous breakdown the following symptoms present themselves: nervous headache, a feeling of depression, fitful, disturbed, restless and unrefreshing sleep, often troubled with frightful dreams, avoidance of crowded places, dread of being alone, horror of society, etc.

When the nerve becomes affected in this way the heart generally becomes affected, too, and on the first signs of any weakness of the heart or nerves, flagging energy or physical breakdown do not wait until your case becomes hopeless, but get a remedy that will at once quieten the nerves, strengthen the heart and build up the entire system.

This you will find in MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. M. Langsdorf, Young's Cove Road, N.B., writes: "I was bothered very much with my heart and nerves, had nervous headache and distress, could not sleep at night, and my appetite was all gone. I was on a nervous breakdown when I was a child, and I tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. This I did, and before I had the second box used I was better and would advise anyone who has nerve trouble to take them."

TRUSTEES FAVOR LADY INSPECTOR

Change in Regard to Domestic Science Supported by Casting Vote of Chairman—Board of Reference

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 10.—R.C. school trustees came to a sharp division this morning over the suggested recommendation that a lady superintendent of domestic science be appointed by the Government.

At first it was regarded as legislation for the city schools at the expense of the rural, but that the lady delegates made it plain that the matter was vital to the whole Province, and that domestic science would soon be in the rural schools. Male inspectors knew their own work, but little enough of domestic science.

The convention divided equally on the vote, President Perry joyfully casting his one vote of the session on the side of the ladies.

A board of reference for contentious cases arising between boards and teachers is recommended, also a joint committee with the teachers' association to consider salaries and working conditions. It is not considered business that rural trustees be obliged to lay personal notes in the local banks to pay on school expenditures until the Government grant arrives. The Government should advance the money, say the delegates.

In a well-reasoned address on technical education Principal J. C. Lister pointed out that a correct education should be built upon good English mathematics and drawing, saying that drawing is the one universal language always understood. A knowledge of the simple science of every-day life should form part of ordinary education.

The trustees adjourned to inspect the technical school of New Westminster after luncheon.

RIORDAN ACTION FULLY JUSTIFIED

Sir Henry Drayton Replies to Statements Respecting Delay Allowed Company in Payment of Profits Tax

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—In a memorandum issued last night, replying to the statement made by H. J. Ellard, Progressive candidate in the Wright constituency, that the Government accepted notes from the Riordan Lumber Company in lieu of some $850,000 owing for excess profit taxes, Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, declared that in dealing with the problem the question for determination "was a sheriff's sale on the one hand, or nursing the account on the other, so that the business of the company might be carried on."

The action of the Government was the result of public opinion, he said. In view of the fact that a sheriff's sale would have resulted in severe hardship to many citizens doing business with the company and to the company's employees, Sir Henry emphasized that the Government has not waived its claim in any way, but that the claim for taxes has priority over the claims of pulp producers, jobbers and bankers, and carries interest at the rate of seven per cent. An interesting point brought out by Sir Henry is that the principle is exactly the same as that applied to the farmers of the West who, through crop failure, are unable to meet their obligations.

The memorandum adds: "It may be further observed that the department's action is not only consonant with sensible business administration, but that it is similar to practice elsewhere. The British act provides: 'In the case of any trade or business which by reason of its being unable to pay its debenture holders or creditors is being carried on by a liquidator, receiver or trustee under the court, no excess profits duty shall be levied or paid until provision has been made for payment of such unpaid debenture holders or creditors.'"

NATIONS HONOR UNKNOWN HERO

Tributes From Near and Far Laid on Bier of Soldier Who Typifies United States' Share in War

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Great and simple folk proved in endless procession today through the rotunda of the Capitol to pay tribute to the unknown dead lying in such state there as only martyred presidents have known. The day was set aside for it. All who could speak for groups in the land or for the powers of the world were free to place their floral offerings at his bier. Hour by hour the heaping flowers about the casket grew mountain high and spread about the vast chamber. Flowers that bloomed in France were there, and flowers brought in all their beauty from South Africa, 9,000 miles away. There was not a minute of the day unclaimed by those who would do honor to the dead. There was no organization of veterans or of patriotic people over the land unrepresented.

Among the most formal of the pilgrimages to this shrine of patriotic valor was that planned by the British Embassy. From the Embassy building there was arranged a parade headed by Arthur J. Balfour, head of the British delegation to Washington and former Premier, and Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador. Nearly a score of automobiles formed the procession, and two motor trucks carried the flowers.

A wreath from King George was among them. Lord Cavan acting for the King. It bore the legend: "An unknown, and yet well known; An dying, and behold, we live." There was a wreath, too, from Canada, its inscription saying:

"But that which put the glory of grace into
"All that he did was that he died of
"Love to his country."

That from Premier Lloyd George said:

"Nameless, yet his name liveth
"eternally."
And that from India said:

"They never die who die to make "life worth living."

There were wreaths also from Australia and New Zealand, and all of these except that from India were made of flowers grown in English soil, brought over as living plants.

From the Grand Army of United Veterans of Canada came a wreath placed by Sergeant Richardson, oldest living wearer of the Victoria Cross. There were flowers from Newfoundland, and from the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada came a memorial woven of poppies that bloom in Flanders fields; and beside all the civil dignitaries Great Britain sent to pay homage went Earl Beatty, Admiral of the Fleet; Air Vice-Marshal Higgins and others whose roles in the war in which this unknown soldier died were great.

A few minutes of noon the British delegation, led by Earl Beatty, Arthur J. Balfour and Ambassador Geddes, marched into the rotunda from the north entrance. An officer of the guard approached the catafalque holding aloft a huge wreath. As the offering from the British Empire was placed at the side of the coffin, the Earl, the former Premier, and the ambassador stepped back, and a Scot, his wreath held high, moved forward with the first tribute from the British possessions. Next came the wreath from Newfoundland carried by a hardy son of the North, and then the tribute from Canada, placed by Sir Robert Borden, former Premier of the Dominion. A son of India, wearing a silk turban, and representatives from every land over which the Union Jack waves, brought their floral tributes.

Entire, the British tribute completely covered one side of the coffin, hinged it from view.

Just prior to the appearance of the British, the Boy Scouts marched in saluted and chanted their oath. The Scout wreath carried the legend: "Be prepared."

Entire, the British tribute completely covered one side of the coffin, hinged it from view.

City Officials and Detectives
May Give Testimony in McKenzie Case Before Council Today

Mayor Porter yesterday issued summonses for the appearance of Medical Health Officer Arthur G. Price, Sanitary Inspector Thomas F. Lancaster and several others, including two women, at the investigation this afternoon of "mystery charges" against Assistant Sanitary Inspector George MacKenzie.

The probe will commence in the Council Chamber at 2:30, with Mayor Porter in the chair and the full City Council probably in attendance.

Alderman A. M. Altken cancelled a trip to Vancouver in order to be present at a meeting to see that MacKenzie gets fair play," declared the alderman.

It was stated at the City Hall yesterday afternoon that city detectives would probably be called upon to give testimony.

Whether or not the investigation will be conducted in public or in camera has not yet been decided.

Injured in Train Wreck
MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 10.—Six persons were seriously injured, and a number of others were bruised and cut when three Pullmans and two day coaches on southbound Atchafalpa, Topeka & Santa Fe passenger train No. 11, were derailed and went over an embankment a mile south of here early today, according to Dr. A. B. Childers.

Of 1,500,000 homes destroyed in Poland during the war, about 550,000 have been rebuilt.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR AFFAIRS

Rule of One Day's Rest in Seven Is Adopted, With Amendment by Mr. Tom Moore—Other Suggestions

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A Reuter dispatch from Geneva says that the committee of the international labor conference has adopted the draft of the international convention establishing the general rule of one day's rest in seven. Delegate Tom Moore, of Canada, succeeded by a narrow majority in securing the insertion of an amendment providing that where the rule was suspended or diminished "it shall be the duty of the Government to make provision as far as possible for compensating rest periods."

During the discussion on the report of the labor office, Gerald Brown, of the Canadian delegation, submitted a practical suggestion, that an opportunity should be afforded for an examination of competent persons before the meeting of the conference, as this would, he believed, result in a great saving of time.

Mr. Brown also suggested that labor conferences should not be so frequent, but pointed out that he was merely putting forward his personal views, and was not speaking on behalf of the Canadian Government, with which he is connected as secretary of the reconstruction and development committee of the cabinet.

It had been suggested, continued Mr. Brown, that the next conference should be held next May or June, but in his opinion it would be impossible to hold it then.

J. H. Thomas, of the British delegation, said he agreed with the suggestion that there should be an examination of the conference programme before the meeting, but thought it was undesirable to call the conference less frequently. He was willing, however, to curtail the agenda.

The date for the next conference will be fixed by the board of management.

DEFEND POLICY OF PROGRESSIVES

Hon. T. A. Cresser and Premier Drury Talk in Prince Edward County—Former Refers to Grain Inquiry

PICTON, Ont., Nov. 10.—Despite rough weather and falling snow, the Picton Armory was filled Wednesday afternoon to hear Hon. T. A. Cresser, leader of the National Progressives, and Hon. E. C. Drury, Premier of Ontario.

Premier Drury said the Progressive movement had grown beyond the original farmers' movement, and was now representative of all classes of people. It had been shown in Ontario that men without political experience were able to govern successfully.

It was time, too, Mr. Drury proceeded, that an experiment should be made in Federal politics. The two parties had looked more to winning elections than to solving national problems.

Mr. Cresser said the Progressive movement had been described as a dangerous emanation from the Bolshevik farmers of the Western Prairies. But in its essence, it was a protest against class legislation. Even the Farmers' organization could not be accused of a desire for class domination.

Patronage System

The Progressive leader referred to the patronage system as having exercised a "blighting influence" on the public life of Canada. For fifteen years the Farmer organizations had been largely responsible for the creation of public opinion against it. Patronage in the civil service had been abolished; but there were still some evidences of it in the Senate and bench to be found. There was the greatest security possible on the part of politicians who feared to try their chances again with the electorate and wanted to find a place in that "splendid haven of refuge known as the Canadian Senate." And how had the vacancies been filled? In every case they had gone to friends of the Government. Indeed, Hon. Edward Bristol had

FIFTEEN BOILS ON NECK AT ONE TIME

Anyone who has suffered from boils can sympathize with poor old Job.

There was no Burdock Blood Bitters in those days, as Job had to suffer in silence. Nowadays no one need endure the misery of boils.

Boils are simply evidences of the bad blood within coming to the surface and just when you get rid of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your misery.

All the poisoning and lancing you may do will not stop more coming. What you have to do is take and the blood will be cleansed of all its impurities, and then every boil will disappear.

Mr. Roy McEwain, High Bank, P.E.I., writes: "I was troubled with boils for some time and had as many as fifteen on my neck at once. After taking one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters they commenced to get better, and after I had taken two bottles I was relieved of them and felt much better. I think B. B. B. is a grand blood medicine, and can recommend it highly."

For the past 45 years B. B. B. has been manufactured only by the T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE DAY

The chief value which lies in celebrating the past is that inspiration may be drawn from it for the future, for it is traditions and memories which imbue us with the temper of wholesome resolve. This anniversary is a ritual day in the history of the race. It is a trust handed down by the expenditure of blood and sacrifice which must be held for the good of humanity. That good, if it is to be accomplished, must be fashioned in the lives of men and women, the sum total of whose effort can be made a powerful and efficient instrument of law and progress. During the three years since the Armistice was signed the world has been suffering from the limpness of overstrain, which would argue that the nations have not been inured to the spirit of sacrifice and that they do not realize that the virtues and the labors of peace are just as great as those of war. There was never any need for this overstrain. It was a disease which exhibited more mental than physical weakness and which affected nations that had hardly been touched by the sacrifices of war. It took the form of diminution in respect for existing political institutions and principles, for humanity always has a faculty of finding a scapegoat for its shortcomings. It forgot that those very institutions and principles were of its own making and that the way to cure them is not by revilement, or by laboring in a labyrinth of theoretical speculations.

Intellectual honesty and courageous purpose were taught by the Great War. No new political issues have emerged from the struggle, for it is the world-old fight that is still being waged for the triumph of good over evil. Policies may need re-stating, but they differ in no sense from what they have ever been so far as their moral nature transcends their material values. We are pleased to think sometimes that there are new conditions of national life, but history will hardly record this to be the case, for the Great War will accomplish more than it was ever expected to do if, as a result of it, men become more honest. War itself has the effect of wiping out unrealities and affectations and it teaches the lesson that these, too, can be divorced from peace. Its memories are the inspiration pointing to the greater achievements which lie along the path of peace. On anniversaries such as this the eyes of humanity should be set on the future just as much as on the past, for it is unwise to count anything as being accomplished if aught remains to be done. That is why the memory of this anniversary should be an inspiration, more especially because today marks the opening of a conference of the nations which has peace as its watchword.

THE IRISH CONFERENCE

The outstanding feature of Mr. Lloyd George's Guildhall speech was the hope he held out that the Irish negotiations may be brought to a successful issue. This is what the people of the United Kingdom have been wishing to hear more than anything else, for doubts have been entertained lately that no compromise was possible. The Prime Minister admits the most critical stage of the conference has been reached. It has arrived at a point where Ulster has to be consulted and the Ulster Ministers have gone to London to hear the proposals which the Government is putting forward. It should be remembered, however, that, as yet, there is no finality in sight, for it is certain whatever decision is reached must be submitted to the Dail Eireann as well as to the British Parliament. The latter will support the Government in its stand. The Ulster Ministers, too, will have to submit their decision to the Ulster Parliament, and, should there be ratification from all sources mentioned, it is likely that referenda would have to be held in Ireland.

Success, Mr. Lloyd George pointed out, will depend on the reconciliation and accommodation of differences of temperament, traditions and interests. He intimates there must be a policy of give and take, and since he is hopeful of the outcome there must be sanction for the belief that a spirit of conciliation is abroad. Mr. Lloyd George is inherently optimistic and has had very considerable experience of Irish differences. In speaking at the Guildhall he knew that the whole nation would weigh his words, for pronouncements at the annual Lord Mayor's banquet are always held to possess historical significance. The bringing of peace to Ireland through purely political efforts and by a policy of forbearance and compromise would exercise its influence on the deliberations of the Washington conference, for it would afford an example of how even the bitterest feelings can be assuaged where there is a spirit of good will and a desire to combine energies designed to bring about moral and material welfare.

ARMISTICE CELEBRATIONS

Today is not a public holiday, but we feel that a large representation of the citizens will find it a solemn duty of their sense of thanksgiving to attend the short memorial service this morning in Parliament Building Square. This ceremony is in the form of a tribute to those who died in the Great War, and it is fitting that the arrangements should be carried out under the auspices of the returned soldiers of the city. The idea of a simple wooden cross being planted on the lawn of the Parliament Buildings, where tributes of respect may be laid, will commend itself to all. The ceremony inaugurated today should be perpetuated.

The returned soldiers have also arranged for an Armistice Ball to be held during the evening in the old Drill Hall. This is a public entertainment which should elicit a prompt and hearty response from the citizens, more particularly as the fund it is hoped to raise through it will be devoted to the needs arising out of unemployment. The conception of this entertainment was a happy one, for upon a day like this it should have a special appeal.

SEEKING FOURTH TERM

Mayor Porter is to seek a fourth term in office and in doing so he will be assured of a very cordial measure of public support. He has won hosts of friends during his occupancy of the mayoral chair, and, generally speaking, he can be credited with having carried on a safe and sane policy with regard to the financial difficulties which this municipality is experiencing. His re-election would assure to the citizens the services of one who has devoted a good deal of time and study to the city's taxation problem and this is a matter which will loom up more prominently than ever during the next municipal year. Mayor Porter believes in economy in administration and it is the feeling of the taxpaying property owners that this practice must be continued. He believes, too, that these taxpayers are entitled to relief from the burden which is forcing so much property into municipal ownership. The problem of taxation readjustment with which the next City Council will have to deal, which constitutes a reason why the continuation in office of the present Mayor would be desirable because of his experience and knowledge of the financial situation.

"CARRY ON!"

"Then, said he, 'My sword I give to him that shall succeed me in my pilgrimage. My Marks and Scarra I carry with me, to be a witness for me. That I fought His Battles, Who now shall be my Rewarder.' So he passed over. And all the Trumpets sounded for him on the other Side." (Pilgrim's Progress)

What of the charge they passed, flung behind them
Like a bright signal flashed and gone?
"My sword I give," they cried, "each to another."
And bade us "carry on!"

Not ours the thunder and scream of hell in Flanders,
Nor those dread silences of night;
Nor on a different field of cloud and crimson
The same foe still to fight.

Not against cohorts of a race dishonored,
But "principals and powers,"
Clothed in new lures, new treachery,
New terror—
The self-same war is ours.

"Per ardua ad astra!" Have we failed them?
This was the flaming path they trod!
Shall we refuse to face hard things for high things?
To vanquish self—for God?

And never alone!—amid a host victorious,
A "cloud of witnesses," close, unseen—
Under their banner, following in their footsteps—
Towards their Goal we lean!

Upholding Honor in a world of treason—
Truth, a choking mist of lies—
Courage, through strange and tortuous paths of darkness—
Out of the deep, we rise

Into the Dawn! On! Marks in meekness bearing—
(What of the royal Scarra they bore?)
To be our witness, that we fought His Battles
Who fought ours long before;

Till, on a surging crest of victory carried,
As on some glorious morning tide,
We catch the mists of all the Trumpets sounding
Upon the Other Side!

ARMISTICE DAY

The Light of Love still burns,
And though the years pass on,
And the Beloved One gone,
No more returns.

He lives within my heart—
The heart which held him dear.
His image ever near—
Still of my life, a part.

Part of my life, he is—
Dear Soldier, mown by Death,
And He, who gave his breath,
On the wild sea.

"No more they come," we say,
But, when the years have flown—
"Spirit to Spirit known—
We meet our Own."

In Regions far away,
How breathes the soul of Canada's crimson sod,
And where wild Ypres rolled back the Eagle's sword,
Where Vimy Ridge rears high his shattered head,
Immortal with the deeds of thy great dead.
—ETHEL REYNOLDS.

ARMISTICE DAY

On Flanders Field a broken cheer
Went up,
From broken men, with hearts too
Dashed to know
What joy was theirs—"Dear God, We're through"—you say?
"It cannot be: and yet it must be so."

Some sank to sleep, some stayed Awake to pray—
Three years ago—three years ago
Today.

The men who fell, God knows we Hold them dear—
The flower of Britain—gallant Gentlemen;
But what of those who fought—and Still live on?

Our gallant, glorious "living"—what of them?
Those men who wear their scars,
That we may say,
"Three years ago—three years ago
Today."

Forget them not, they ask not charity:
That were an insult worthy of the mob.
Who stayed behind, while others
tasted Hell
And saw to it they held the softest job.

Forget them not, lest we forget to say,
Three years ago—three years ago
Today.
—JANET I. GAINER.

TO AUTUMN

Season of mists and mellow fruitfulness,
Close bosom friend of the maturing
corn;
Conspiring with him how to load and bleed
With fruit the vines that round the doe-trees run;

To bend with apples the moss'd cottage trees,
And fill all fruit with ripeness to the core;
To swell the gourd, and plump the hazel shells,
With a sweet kernel; to set budding
more,

And, as the morn'g flower buds
begin,
So, to the farmer's plough, with spring
Come, Summer, with your barge of plenty;

Who hath not seen thee oft amid thy store?
Sometimes whoever seeks abroad
may find
Thee sitting careless on a granary floor,

Thy half-swiftly by the wind-swept
Or a half-dead furred sow asleep,
Drowsed with fumes of poppies,
While thy hook
Spare the next swath and all its twined flowers;

And sometimes like a gleamer thou dost keep Steady thy laden head across a brook;
Or by a cider-press, with patient
look,
Thou watchest the last oozings hours by hours.

Where are the songs of Spring? Ay, where are they?
Think not of them, thou hast thy music too—
While barred clouds bloom the soft-dying day,
And touch the stubble plains with rosy hue;

Then in a wailful choir the small gnats mourn
Among the river sallows, borne aloft
Or sinking as the light wind lives or dies;
And full-grown lambs low bleat from hilly bourn,
Hedge crickets sing, and now with trill
The red-breast whistles from a garden croft;

And gathering swallows twitter in the skies.
—John Keats.

MADAME BERNERON

GUEST AT RECEPTION

Madame Berneron, "The Poppy Lady of France," was the guest of honor at a reception tendered her Wednesday night by the Women's Auxiliary of the City of Victoria. Mrs. F. Ricketts, president of the Auxiliary, received the guests, and was assisted by Mrs. A. H. C. Jones, who acted as chairman throughout the evening.

Madame Berneron addressed the meeting, making a very strong appeal to her listeners to wear the poppy on Armistice Day, not as a financial undertaking, but as an emblem of the flower adopted by the Army of France in the Northern France, after church service on Sunday, attended the graves of the fallen, keeping their self-imposed trust in perfect condition.

During the evening a delightful concert programme was rendered, which included the following selections: "Marsellaise," sung by Miss Lamy; "Tumbledown Shack," by Mr. Welsh; "Tommy Lads," and "Down the Trail to Home, Sweet Home," by Mr. Boulder; a banjo solo; "The Laughing Song," by Mr. Dooley; a dance and song from Miss Dooley; and a recitation from "As You Like It," by Miss Thorpe.

Announcement was made by the president, Mrs. Ricketts, that special reservation had been made on the steps of the Parliament Buildings for families who suffered bereavement in the war, during the armistice service tomorrow morning at 10:45. The standards of the I.O.D.E. will be draped behind this space.

CANADA'S FALLEN

Were every snowy peak of thy Great West
A gravestone white, each prairie flower a wreath,
How could they mark that mighty couch of death,
Oh, Canada, where all thy fallen rest!

How memory folds within thy mother-breast
Those faithful years, fraught with the frenzied breath
Of hell, when Havoc stalked the seas beneath,
And caves of earth, and all the clouds' wild crest!

It was for thee that last dread trail they trod,
Where dree French slopes and Flemish fens the storm;
How breathes the soul of Canada's crimson sod,
And where wild Ypres rolled back the Eagle's sword,
Where Vimy Ridge rears high his shattered head,
Immortal with the deeds of thy great dead.

—DUDLEY H. ANDERSON.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

We invite the reader to be inserted except over the proper signature and address of the writer. This rule admits of no exception.

On "Holly"
Sir,—Inquiries are coming in so plentifully just now regarding the treatment and care of holly trees, and so far as I know, there being no practical literature on the subject available, I venture a few suggestions through your paper.

Of first importance, perhaps, should be the general knowledge that in the holly there are two distinct sexes, the pistillate or female tree that produces the berries, and the staminate or male that produces no fruit, only flowers.

As the pistillate tree produces perfect flowers for the fertilization and production of fruit and berries, it is not necessary to plant the staminate tree. Anyone growing berries for commercial purposes can dispense with all male trees without injury to the crop.

The common green, prickly, English variety is the only one of value commercially; the various variegated and freak leafed kinds are useful as decorative specimens only. In buying holly trees designate "berried holly" and have the grower confirm in writing. Good berried hollies are, and always will be, high in price, as growth in the early stages is very slow.

Grafted plants are more and more taking the place of the seedlings. When these grafted plants are used, no suckers must be allowed to spring from the roots and in any case the roots should be allowed to touch the ground. "Layering" holly branches for reproduction is not advisable—their growth is too slow.

Plant at any time during the winter or very early spring. The plants should never be housed for 24 hours after digging and planting and the roots should not be exposed. When planting reduce the top to correspond to the decrease of roots caused by the digging.

Holly requires a special soil and very little manure or fertilizer. In the early stages berries should be stripped off the trees in an early stage of their growth. As the tree attains its growth cut the berries regularly. In doing this always cut with an eye to thinking the tree to allow sun and air to circulate through the branches. Don't clip the ends off. This only makes the tree thicker and encourages insect pests and fungus diseases. If the tree is very thin, tall cut the top off, removing the top shoots just above a tier of branches. In the case of old trees that have a dense mass of old branches on the ground, clear the whole surface of the soil to the main stem, allowing no shoot within one foot of the ground.

The length of time required for a tree of fair size when planted to "branch a size" when it may be considered of commercial value may be put at ten years.

A Correction

Sir,—It has been brought to our attention that in an edition of your paper under date of Sunday, Nov. 6, the following paragraph appeared:

"Mr. Harry Pearce, of Brentwood, has completed his vacation in the Old Coast Hotel, where he will take up his usual duties at the hotel."

This information is incorrect. Mr. Pearce's connection with the hotel was terminated in April, 1921, and there is no intention of entering into any other arrangement with him. A lease of the hotel has been arranged with Mr. Felix Masarik.

Armistice Carnival

Sir,—An Armistice Carnival, under the auspices of the G. W. V. A., has been arranged for the evening of November 11, at the Old Drill Hall, Menzies Street, and the support of the public is earnestly solicited. Unfortunately many functions will be held on that night and unless a special effort is made the service men's function will not be a financial success. Any profits will be used to form the nucleus of a relief fund for dependents of the fallen and needy ex-servicemen there being many deserving cases.

Armistice Day belongs to the returned man by right of conquest; because they fought for it, suffered for it, and many thousands died for it; and because the dependents of the fallen are the first charge upon the men who have returned. On that day the children of Northern France, after church service on Sunday, attended the graves of the fallen, keeping their self-imposed trust in perfect condition by rallying to the call of the men who fought.

The path of duty of all pleasure-seekers on the evening of November 11 leads to the Old Drill Hall. The men who served to help look to the people to be loyal to them. They believe there will be no breach of faith with the men who fought and the men who died.

Tickets may be obtained from the G. W. V. A., Law Chambers, Bastion Street, at 75c each, with an additional 25c for table reservation. Dress will be informal. A limited amount of space is available in the galleries to which the public will be admitted on payment of 25c.

WRITES IN DEFENCE OF LORD KITCHENER

Toronto Mail and Empire

It may be doubted if the damage to a great reputation done by Lord Kitchener's "Tragedy of Lord Kitchener" will be repaired until, in the future, somebody else writes a biography of the British Secretary of War. When the book first appeared a few months ago, the standing of Lord Kitchener and the fact that he appeared to write like a sympathetic if candid friend and even confidant of Lord Kitchener, kept critics dumb. He spoke so confidently and yet with an appearance of such fairness that the admirers of Lord Kitchener were driven to the conclusion that they had been mistaken, that their idol had feet of clay, and that he had been tremendously over-rated as a soldier and administrator. Now that the first shock of the revelation is over, then admirers are beginning to find their voices and from many quarters come emphatic protests against Kitchener's book with its misleading facts. People are asking what reason was there to write such a book even if it had been a true picture, which, they assert, it is not. They are even suggesting that Lord Kitchener was by no means the author who should have attempted the work.

Defended by Soldier
Blackwood's Magazine takes Lord Kitchener's book on general grounds, but Lt.-Gen. Sir Henry M. Lawson, a soldier who served with distinction by the Egyptian and South African campaigns, writes in the Nineteenth Century discussing the book in detail and setting forth the belief that Kitchener was not over-rated, and that never in his long career did he perform a greater service to his country as after the outbreak of the Great War. In the view of Sir Henry, Kitchener did more than any Englishman to defeat the enemy, even though he did not live to see that defeat achieved. He is able to quote Earl Haig on this point. "The British Field Marshal said, 'Who can doubt that but for this man and his work Germany would have been victorious? Perhaps the victory would have come to us sooner, but it would have been at the cost of a million more lives.'"

Not Unprejudiced
Lord Kitchener's peculiar disqualification for writing an unprejudiced history is challenged by Sir Henry Lawson on the ground that he was a member of the Committee on Imperial Defence, "which was responsible for working out that war policy which Lord Kitchener ultimately overturned. For one so placed, it was difficult to discern even-handed justice as regards Lord Kitchener and to give their full weight to criticisms which involved not only his friends, but himself."

It was Kitchener who put an end to the policy of a limited liability assistance to France which the Committee had adopted. He foresaw a more and more desperate war and the necessity of raising an army of millions of men. A few days before he sailed upon the Hampshire he said to the House of Commons:

"Such an effort as this, which is the theory of all European soldiers' armies, it had long been argued, could be expanded within limits, but could not be created in time of war. I felt myself that, though there might be some justice in this view, I had to take risks and embark upon what might be regarded as a significant experiment."

The Strong Man
In disproof of the Kitchener theory that Lord Kitchener was no longer the strong, far-seeing, vigorous man he had been years before, General Lawson quotes the fact that on a distinguished soldier after another argued with him and strove to convince him that his plan—the plan that was to bloom in Kitchener's army—was an impracticable one. The Cabinet was not with him, but Kitchener stuck to his guns and eventually forced the scheme upon his colleagues. He believed the Cabinet in the years preceding the Great War for its failure to consult Kitchener, who in a letter to Lord French three weeks after the outbreak of war, said:

"I had been consulted on military matters during the last three years I would have done everything in my power to prevent the present state of things in which the country finds itself."

Politicians to Blame
Blackwood's blames the politicians for Lord Kitchener's trouble and also for what it considers an attempt to blacken his memory. Kitchener did not possess the qualities necessary for success in politics. He had spent his life in serving his country. He did not stop to gauge pressure or to accommodate divided opinions. "The mere aspect of twenty-three years' experience, middle-aged or elderly civilians pretending to conduct a war, was appalling. . . . It was not Lord Kitchener's business from 1914 on, to come to this city, entered the Victoria High School, where he left his mark as an honor student and head of several school organizations. Later he entered the Victoria College of Arts, where, despite a late entry and musical studies, he passed with honors. It was his ambition to enter McGill this year to continue his studies as an electrical engineer, but overwork brought on illness and his ambitions and brilliant future were cut off by the grim messenger of death."

Confident of Future Life
It is, however, of his pasting and his silent preparation that I desire to emphasize. Even I, his closest friend, knew not of the thought that he had given quietly to the great subject of death and the after-world, until he himself told me his views on what he was fearfully going to, during one of the conscious moments of those last ten nights that it was my privilege to watch over him. He knew that his life was drawing to a close, and he trained from a child to take his place in the work of this world, he who had a great and wonderful career ahead of him quietly and willingly left his friends and loved ones to enter, not a land of greater service, greater love and more careful watchfulness over his friends, free from the pains and fatigue of this busy world, struggling with the rod of commerce.

Thus his last moments were ones of comfort for the soul, for he was ready to pass on. A life that had its own reward, would have made its mark upon the world has passed on leaving behind a sterling lesson to all young folk to be prepared, for death comes any time.

The earth recedes, it disappears,
Heaven opens one serene eye,
With sounds seraphic ring,
I mount, I fly,
O grave, where is thy victory?
O death, where is thy sting?

Young lives were sacrificed to make an end of aggression against liberty. To that the Unknown Warrior in his silent tomb bears perpetual witness which none dare deny. If it were otherwise "nearly 1,000,000 British dead from many continents"—whom the Premier eloquently eulogized—well as their Allied comrades, made the supreme sacrifice in vain. That can never be. But the Disarmament Conference this month will be the acid test. The war will be won in its full purpose only when the solemn pledges which General Pershing and Mr. Lloyd George exchanged at the tomb recently are ratified by the American and British peoples in a covenant of permanent peace—London Daily Mail.

Twenty years ago women were regarded as the chattels of their husbands. Twenty years ago a woman could not be a solicitor or a barrister. She could not even ride astride on a horse without exciting unfavorable comment. There has been a war since then. The disquietude to the cause of peace has been drawn to a close, and he trained from a child to take his place in the work of this world, he who had a great and wonderful career ahead of him quietly and willingly left his friends and loved ones to enter, not a land of greater service, greater love and more careful watchfulness over his friends, free from the pains and fatigue of this busy world, struggling with the rod of commerce.

Thus his last moments were ones of comfort for the soul, for he was ready to pass on. A life that had its own reward, would have made its mark upon the world has passed on leaving behind a sterling lesson to all young folk to be prepared, for death comes any time.

The earth recedes, it disappears,
Heaven opens one serene eye,
With sounds seraphic ring,
I mount, I fly,
O grave, where is thy victory?
O death, where is thy sting?

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN ZIEGLER'S ACTION

Suit of Dismissed Fire Captain Against City for Reinstatement or Damages Is Concluded in Supreme Court

Judgment was reserved by Mr. Justice Morrison yesterday at the close of the action, after two days' proceedings, of Frederick W. Ziegler against the City of Victoria, brought for alleged wrongful dismissal of the plaintiff from his position as captain in the city fire department. Yesterday's session of the trial was mainly taken up with the testimony of witnesses for the defence, Fire Chief Stewart being the principal witness called. Mr. John R. Green appeared for the plaintiff, and Messrs. M. B. Jackson, K.C., and H. G. Pringle for the municipal authorities.

Evidence for the plaintiff had been, in brief, that Ziegler had been a city captain since 1907, and had held rank as captain since 1910. On July 13 last he went with the fire truck of which he was in charge to a fire call from Richmond Road. Driver T. Headly, also later discharged as a result of the accident, was at the wheel of the truck. In the "Dardanelles" of Fort Street, the truck was close behind an eastbound street car, which stopped suddenly at St. Charles Street. To avoid a rear-end collision, as he asserted, Ziegler gave the order to turn out on the right-hand side. The order was obeyed, with the result that a disastrous collision occurred with a westbound car on the south track. Ziegler was first suspended by Chief Stewart, and afterwards dismissed from the service; both these actions having the support of the city fire wardens.

Fire Chief's Testimony

Yesterday Chief Stewart said that he had held Ziegler responsible for the accident; and he was still of opinion that the fire captain's negligence and disobedience to standing traffic rules of the department were the prime cause of the collision. The witness took charge of the work of disentangling the damaged street car from the wrecked truck. The street car was very extensively damaged, he said, and as for the fire truck, that was so badly smashed that it could not be used again.

Chief Stewart could find no airtight marks indicating that the driver of the truck had applied his brakes to avert the collision, and in his opinion the brakes were not applied. Ziegler was in charge of the truck, and the driver was under his instructions. The rules governing the emergency had been in force since 1915, and had been reinforced not long before the accident by specific verbal instructions from the chief to the force that they were to observe the rules of the road, and were only to use such speed in their response to fire calls as was consistent with safety. He had issued an order that not more than 25 miles an hour should be made with the fire vehicles on the way to fire, and not more than 15 miles on the way back.

In Chief Stewart's opinion the fire truck, if it were under control, and at the distance of 75 feet behind the eastbound car alleged by the plaintiff, should have been able to stop behind that car. The order to cross and pass on the wrong side of the road should not have been given, and he had dismissed the plaintiff for giving that order. He had been supported by the fire wardens in his action.

Reckless Speed Alleged

Wilfred Matthews, of the fire department, testified that the brakes of the truck were in good order at the time of the collision. H. W. Clark, a jitney driver, said that the fire truck passed him just before the collision at the rate of 25 miles an hour. Deputy Chief Munroe gave similar evidence. F. Robinson, motorman of the wrecked street car, said he was only traveling three miles an hour when the truck hit his car.

"CLOSED SHOP" ON SUNDAYS IS URGED

Closing of all fruit stores and soft drink parlors in Victoria during the winter months was proposed by Commissioner Ernest A. Hall at last night's meeting of the Police Board. Dr. Hall claimed that Chinese groceries in the suburbs and residential districts were flagrantly violating the Sunday closing law.

Chief John Fry explained that the stores were sub-divided, the grocery part being closed and the fruit and soft drink end of the business being open on Sundays.

No one would second Dr. Hall's proposal, although Commissioner Joe North advanced a plea for segregation of all Chinese stores in the Oriental quarter.

A letter from Mr. Aubrey Hoyte, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance here, complaining about Sunday band concerts, was received.

Questioned by Dr. Hall about activities of the detectives, Chief Fry said he would give the commissioner a report at a private conference.

Three City Hotel Keepers Face Trial as Result of Police Raid

Three local hotel keepers, Huro Bannock, of the Northern Restaurant and Palm Garden Grill, William Quagliotti, of the Allie Hotel, and John M. Anderson, of the Atlantic Hotel, were charged before Magistrate Jay in the City Police Court yesterday with unlawfully keeping liquor for sale in their respective places of business.

The accused, who were charged individually, and pleaded not guilty in turn, were charged as a result of a police raid on their respective hotels Wednesday night.

Mr. H. A. Maclean, K. C., appeared in behalf of Bannock, and obtained a remand of his client's case until today. Mr. R. C. Lowe, defending Quagliotti, will appear for trial next Monday. Anderson's case was also remanded until Monday, he being not represented by counsel.

HORSE BREEDERS WILL ORGANIZE

Meeting Called for Tuesday Afternoon in Council Chamber to Discuss Formation of Association

First steps will be taken on Tuesday next in the formation of a Thoroughbred Horse Association for British Columbia. This project was mooted at the time of the recent race meetings held here and promises of support were given by a number of Victoria's prominent citizens, not only those who might be directly interested in horsebreeding, but others also who recognize that the formation of such an association would mean the start of a very valuable industry for the Province. The climate here is excellent for the purpose and the opportunities are much greater than might at first thought be apparent.
On Tuesday a meeting is to be held in the local Council Chamber at 4:45 p.m. for the purpose of a preliminary discussion of the feasibility of the project.

Since the first publication of the suggestion to form the association great encouragement has been received from local stockmen, sportsmen and others who can see in the proper following of the suggestion the foundation of a profitable industry.

The Principal Objects
The objects of such an association are to encourage and insure cooperative effort in all matters relating to the production of the thoroughbred horse and his blood-relations, hunter, steeplechaser, cavalry horse, saddle, polo pony, etc.

The welfare of a large extent dependent on the legislation governing racing and betting. This association, although it is not within its sphere to undertake the management of race meetings, will be of undoubted value in safeguarding the interests of Western Canadian breeders and those who wish racing to be conducted as to have for its object the benefit of the country at large. It is the intention that encouragement be given by the opening of stakes for horses bred and developed in Western Canada by the placing of mares with farmers on a profit-sharing basis for breeding and by the encouragement of steeple-chasing and other weight races at different points in the country.

It should be remembered that here we are situated in the only part of Canada where sport of this kind can be carried on all the year round, as is done in England or in Ireland, and in the Fall and Spring sport of this class, with pony and gallopway, racing would prove a unique and immense attraction if properly regulated.

Organized Racing
Racing in all other countries is so organized that it is able to give material aid to the breeding industry.
The Government fully recognizes the importance of the horsebreeding industry, and in almost all foreign countries the breeder is assisted, by the Government, or through it by the breeding societies, by funds accruing from racing profits.

As stated above, considerable interest has been manifested in the project to form an association here, and it is expected that Tuesday's meeting will see the first steps towards the launching of what will prove a most valuable thing for British Columbia.

My Debt of Gratitude.
"Ulcers the Size of Man's Hand."

Our correspondent last week wrote of a Midland Grove, Edward Rd., Seattle
Health, Birmingham, England, who writes:
"In July last I happened to get a scratch on my leg. It was so slight I took no notice of it till a fortnight elapsed, when I found I could not go to work. It gradually grew worse, when it turned septic;
from this period it got from bad to worse
till at length the sore turned into ulcers.
I had at that particular time ulcers the size of a man's hand, covering my leg.
After I had tried nearly everything I read about your Clarke's Blood Mixture and decided to take it. It was then in the month of October, and after the second bottle, I found relief. I continued until the seventh bottle when I found myself completely rid of the trouble. You can make use of this statement and I will be only too pleased to answer any enquiries because it is nothing else but Clarke's Blood Mixture that I owe my debt of gratitude."

Sufferers from Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Piles, Eczema, Rheumatism, Gout, and Rheumatism should realize that Ulcers, abscesses, etc., can be given temporary relief—to be sure of complete and lasting benefit the blood must be brought to the surface of the impure waste matter, the true cause of such troubles. Clarke's Blood Mixture quickly attacks, overcomes, and expels the impurities; that is why so many remarkable recoveries stand to its credit. Pleasant to take, and free from any injurious ingredients. Of all Chemists and Stores.

thing by India and a vast amount of good work. Self-government in India, with the great diversity of creed and race in that country, would mean havoc. Let the British withdraw and they would all be at each other's throats in six months."

Speaks from Observation.

Mr. Yeater did not base his opinions on knowledge gained in indirect ways.
During the last year he made a tour of the whole Asiatic coast from Vladivostok to India, Egypt and Palestine. In Egypt he had conversations with several of the leaders of the independence move there, but had little sympathy for them. Nothing would be gained by the departure of the British from Egypt, he considered, especially at the present time, with only a small proportion of the people consent of national happenings.

In Palestine Mr. Yeater spent two weeks, and came away with great admiration for Sir Herbert Samuel, High Commissioner there, both personally and for his work.

"He is a man of outstanding character and great administrative ability, in my opinion. The people of the country have great trust in him. Indeed, Sir Herbert told me that several Arab tribes, dwelling on the outskirts of the area, under his control, came to him asking that they too be brought under his jurisdiction. The reason they gave was that 'We are afraid the French will get us.'"

Ninety Per Cent for Freedom

The independence movement in the Philippines is very strong, said Mr.
Yeater. Whether it is likely to be satisfied, however, he was not prepared to say, explaining that he was a Democrat, and retiring from office and could speak in no way for the present Republican administration.

"However, ninety per cent of the men, women and children in the Philippines want independence. There is no doubt about that. The country is making great progress, marvelous, considering its condition when taken over by the United States. There is a university at Manila now with between three and four thousand students, and as far as I know there are only three or four Americans among them. The rest are Filipinos."

The appointment of General Wood was hailed with great delight by all classes of Filipino life, he said. Mr.
Yeater's own appointment expired on October 15. He was made vice-governor four years ago, and on the resignation of the Governor, a year and a half ago, was appointed in his stead.
His home is in Sedalia, Missouri.

and the freedom from strife and violence which characterized its course. This dispute, unhappily, was aggravated by the adverse effect of the sudden world-wide trade depression, which has inflicted upon the industry of this country the most serious experience in their history."

The measures recently passed by Parliament for dealing with the problem of unemployment and the revival of trade, were reviewed, and the King continued:

"The peaceful settlement of many difficult disputes by mutual negotiations between the employers and the working people, together with some indications of the revival of trade, encourage my hope that the worst may be over and that the state of employment may show, from now onward, a steady, if slow, improvement. But the position is still full of anxiety, and my ministers will continue to devote to this problem vigilant care."

"It is not, however, so much to Acts of Parliament as to the proved good sense of employers and operatives working together for the promotion of their common interests that I look for the restoration of trade and prosperity."

"Concluding with an allusion to the difficult financial conditions, the King said:

"The imperative need for the avoidance of all fresh burdens, and the further curtailment of expenditure, have required the modification of some measures already passed and

RAILWAY EVILS DUE TO LIBERALS

Referring to the tariff plank in the Liberal 1919 convention platform, Mr.
Meighen declared that the issue was either between protection and free trade between honor and dishonor, or between larger Canadian industrial centres and depopulated Canadian towns.

Doubtless the free traders would find pleasure in a great flourish, or a greater Chicago, he said. In more than half of the Dominion, Liberal candidates were running under a secret pledge that the 1919 platform would not be put into effect. In Quebec numerous Liberal candidates were running on protectionist platforms, and this was also true of the Liberal candidate in Brantford, Ont.
The people of Canada were not presented with a National Liberal platform. "In British Columbia they are seeking protection; free trade in the Prairie Provinces; protection and free trade in Ontario; anti-conservation in Quebec and humbug in the Maritime Provinces," Mr. Meighen said.

IS FATALLY WOUNDED IN GUN ACCIDENT

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 10.—
An accident occurred on Tuesday afternoon, when John Anderson, the twenty-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs.
Anderson, of Crescent, in making some repairs to an automobile at the residence of Mr. Allison, allowed part of the machinery inadvertently to fall upon a loaded gun.

The discharge from the weapon entered Anderson's shoulder, and he lay on the ground for an hour before he was discovered. He was taken to the hospital, but succumbed to shock and loss of blood.

Planets without atmosphere are freezing in the shade and boiling hot in the sun.

those taking part in the programme included Mr. T. H. Coleman, chairman of the Vancouver Welsh choir, who is visiting the city for a few days, and who made a short speech in which he wished every success to the Welsh choir now in process of training under the direction of Messrs. and W. V. Jones, R. Thomas and J. S. Chandler. A quartette of children sang together in Welsh, accompanied at the piano by a small orchestra. Miss Mason played the accompaniments for the other singers, and for the programme the ladies served refreshments.

Iron and Energy

—give them to your husband in a pie that he'll crave because of its luscious flavor

THE man for whom you choose the food, madam, depends largely on you to keep him fit for the modern business grind.

He needs foods that give him unctuous flavor to enjoy, and energy and iron to refresh and vitalize him.

Raisins are rich in iron. Men need but a small bit of iron daily, yet that Real raisin pie is made with lots of raisins. Insist on it. First-class bakers do not stint.

SUN-MAID RAISINS

Use Sun-Maid Raisins, made from California's finest table grapes—American raisins, processed and packed immaculately in a great modern California plant.

Seeded (seeds removed); Seedless (grown without seeds); Clusters (on the stem). Also a fine, ever-ready dessert.

Raisins are cheaper by 30 per cent than formerly—see that you get plenty in your foods.

FOUR IS REMARKABLE FOR CONSISTENT GOLF

Mitchell and Duncan Made Even Better Record on American Courses Than Did Vardon and Hay

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, the great English golfing pros, have returned to their homes across the sea, but their footprints on the greens of America show what is meant by consistent English golf.

Their games were no exhibition, nothing tricky, there was no bluffing out in one on a 400-yard fairway with the eyes shut, there was nothing but golf, the kind of golf that only English knows.

They played 105 rounds, crowding it into 96 days, travelled many thousands miles and in that short time exchanged putts with the greatest of our amateurs and professionals for 52 victories and 17 defeats. It is true that Ted Ray and Harry Vardon, in their driving tour of America last year, piled up an imposing score for the 18-hole matches, but the average cannot be pitted against the consistency of the late tourists, who played their games in 36 holes.

Many Broken Records The superior quality of golf by this famous team has left broken records on eight courses and in the 52 matches they have individual scores of 70 or better. Duncan's grand average for the trip was 72.18 against 72.19 of Mitchell's. On more than 11 courses they equaled the club records. This swiftness record of the Britons has never been equalled on either side of the water.

Their first test on reaching America was to defeat Hutchinson, and their only defeats were at the hands of amateurs.

Duncan, who played here last year, was surprised to find the great stride the Americans could make in perfecting courses in a single year.

"American courses," said Duncan, "are getting nearer every year to the ones of England, in the perfecting of the fairways and greens, and my only objection is to the smoothness of some courses. They lack in traps and bunkers to make the game a little more interesting."

STILL PRESSING FOR FINANCIAL ACCOUNT OF SOCCER TOUR

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—President Tom Mitchell, of the Quebec Football Association, stated tonight that since the association had failed to obtain satisfactory information from the Dominion Football Association regarding the non-production of the financial report of the Scottish football players' tour of the Dominion last summer, the vice-president of the D.F.A. will be appealed to for the required information. No copy of the actual financial statement of the D.F.A. promised 2 months after the annual meeting which was held in Toronto, early in August, has so far been received, Mr. Mitchell added.

The Wednesday Football League will hold a meeting this evening at 8 o'clock, in the Trades Hall, Broad Street.

LOCALS ARE AGAINST MORE LIBERAL RULE

Meeting of Local B.C.A.U. Board Decides That the Present Amateur Definition Is the Best

The local board of the British Columbia Amateur Athletic Union last night decided to stand pat on its decision against revising the laws governing the definition of an amateur, and has wired the Vancouver body, which is meeting tonight, of its refusal to approve of any changes in the amateur classification.

Mr. Percy Watson, vice-president of the local board, took the lead in the absence of Chief of Police Fry, the chairman. The delegates present at the meeting from different athletic organizations in the city included Mr. Al Davies, V. I. A. A.; Mr. Arthur Manson, J. B. A. A.; Mr. Dan O'Sullivan, Victoria Amateur Hockey League; Mr. W. N. Maguire, Y. M. C. A.; Mr. G. W. Stott, V. A. S. C.; and Mr. W. C. Bird, Larrows Athletic Association.

The secretary informed the gathering that a letter had been sent to the Victoria and District Football Association asking them to affiliate themselves with the Union this season, as they had done last year. A reply was received in which the request was refused. It is understood that the football parent body has notified the local football body to try and change the definition of an amateur so that an amateur in one line of sport would not be barred from playing as a professional in other branches of sport.

The local board has adopted the attitude that the definition of an amateur should not be changed. The question raised last night was whether a meeting of the footballers and the Union should be called to go into the whole situation and come to a clear understanding in the matter. The meeting considered that, as no representation had been made to the Union by the Football Association or any other athletic body, it was ill-advised for the local board to take any steps towards calling such a gathering.

The general opinion of the meeting was that only a few members in the football ranks were anxious to change the status of an amateur. Those sponsoring the change, the meeting considered, were a number of Old Country men who thought that the same conditions in sport that apply in England should be in vogue here.

The matter of sending a delegate to Vancouver to attend the Mainland board's gathering which will consider the "amateur classification" question was considered, the meeting deciding not to be officially represented. A wire was sent last night, however, acquainting the Vancouver board that the local board of the Union has taken no action in the matter.

Members Manson and Watson were chosen delegates to the Provincial Amateur Athletic Union, which will convene in Vancouver on Friday, November 18.

The local board chose Mr. Arthur Manson as its nominee for the post of delegate from the provincial branch of the Union to the Dominion body, which meets in Toronto next month.

High School Rugby

The Victoria High School is scheduled to compete in three rugby games next week, two of them senior and one junior. The senior fifteen will meet the University Military College Monday afternoon, the University Military College on Thursday, and the Victoria College in a practice game some free day. The juniors will play the Oak Bay High School Monday. Although this is a pretty serious undertaking for a team that intends to win all of its games, the seniors are confident of victory.

The following is the line-up for the teams: Seniors—Cameron, Clark, Nachtrieb, Collison, Shaw, Straith, Champion, Lorr, Maclean, Maclean, McNamara (captain), Dunn, Lake, Cunningham and Giese.

The junior team has not as yet been chosen, but it is also strong and in good condition. Through the coaching of Mr. Harry Smith the fifteen this year are extraordinarily efficient.

SATURDAY'S RUGBY

Rugby league games arranged for tomorrow are as follows:

Senior
J. B. A. A. vs. Royal Naval College at Oak Bay, referee Carew Martin.
Wanderers vs. Old Boys at Mt. Tolmie.

Intermediate
J. B. A. A. vs. Wanderers at Cranmore Road.

The J.B.A.A. senior team will be as follows: Black, Boon, Johnson, three-quarters, McKenzie, McInnes, Heyland, Webster; halves, Anderson, Lumden; five-eighths, Ellis; forwards, Brynjolfson, Saiton, Travis, Miller, Monteith, McKie, Johnson; reserve, Norris.

PRINCESS PATS ARE WELL IN THE LEAD

Added More Points to Their Total Yesterday by Defeating the Artillerymen in Garrison Soccer

The Princess Pats gained another two points in the Garrison soccer league yesterday when they beat the B.C.G.A. in one of the best games yet played in this league. The score at half-time was three to one in favor of the artillerymen, but after half-time the Pats came back with great determination and succeeded in winning by a one-goal margin, four to three. Play was fast right from the start and the hundred or more spectators were treated to a battle royal.

Anderson, Gibson and Pocock played good football for the losers, while Hiers and Wagart played a fine game at back and Cummins again shone as outside right for the winners. Bill Faulkner, Victoria's popular referee, handled the game in a very satisfactory manner.

The league standing is now as follows:

THREATEN WAR TO ORGANIZED BASEBALL

Suspension of Ruth May Mean Invasion of Field by Wealthy Coterie Backing the "Babe"

According to reports from New York, there is going to be big trouble if Landis should suspend Ruth. If the idea is that Landis will be intimidated into letting Ruth play, it is safe to say the attempt will be unsuccessful. The following item from New York gives an idea of the propaganda:

Reported invasion of wealthy movie producers and theatrical men into baseball caused renewed interest here today in the Landis-Ruth controversy. Backing "Babe" in his intention to establish the home of the club in the Bronx, where a population of one million will not directly put the new club in a position of competition with the Yankees or the Giants.

The plan in its entirety depends upon the signing of "Babe" Ruth. The promoters, it is understood, will put "Babe" in the way of making $200,000 a year. He will be offered a salary, a block of stock in the club he plays on and a share in all gate receipts on the road.

The promoters, who intend to build new parks, plan, it is understood, to construct fields that will be suitable for use for professional football, boxing, baseball and winter skating, as well as all kinds of amateur sports.

PIRATES ARE DUE FOR BIG SHAKEUP

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 9.—A violent shakeup of the Pirates is planned. A crushing blow was dealt Manager Gibson as well as Barney Dreyfuss by the debacle of 1921, when, after leading in the race the greater part of the season, the team faltered in the stretch and the Giants romped home winners.

Five of the regulars of the 1921 team, according to authentic information, will either be traded or released. They are Schmidt, regarded as the peer of the backstops in the National League; Tierney, Whitted, Barnhart and Zinn. George Cuthaw will also be missing. He can return to the team if he wishes, but he plans to remain on the Coast next season.

The Pirate management is already angling for Stock, the Cardinal third baseman.

LADIES WILL PLAY AT DRILL HALL TOMORROW

A specially interesting basketball game will be seen at the Drill Hall tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, when two ladies' teams, the pick of the Sunday School League, will meet. St. Andrew's will be represented by the Misses Sarah McGill, Gwen Hole, Reinda Hamilton, Jean Burridge and Ina Washington. They will be opposed by the Christ Church team, the Misses Grace Wellburn, Katherine Wellburn, Florrie Gates, Phyllis Gates and Marjorie Locke.

MAINLAND AMATEURS FAVOR A CHANGE

Vancouver Meeting Passes Resolution Suggesting Reform in Laws Regarding Professionalism in Sport

VANCOUVER, Nov. 10.—That the definition of an amateur as laid down by the rules of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada be amended so as to permit professionals in one sport to compete as amateurs in another line of sport, was the resolution passed by a meeting of local amateur sportsmen last evening.

The meeting, which was called by the British Columbia Provincial Football Association, was attended by representatives of local amateur baseball, lacrosse, boxing, football, grass hockey, ice hockey and track athletics. The above resolution was passed after several speakers had given their views on the question.

It was decided that a joint meeting should be held next week, at which all local sport organizations, both in and out of the jurisdiction of the amateur union, should be represented. At this meeting the resolution passed last night will be passed upon so that the British Columbia delegate to the Dominion meeting of the A. A. U. will have the authority to vote on the all-important question of professionalism in one sport performing as amateurs in another sport.

TRADES ARE RUMORED IN EASTERN HOCKEY

Cleghorn Is at a Loose End and May Play for Hamilton, but Prefers Joining Ottawa Senators

HAMILTON, Nov. 10.—Rumors of trades in the National Hockey League are going the rounds just now, but nothing definite will be known until after the annual meeting of the league, which will be held the latter part of this week.

Sprague Cleghorn, the Ottawa defenseman, is one man who is beginning to wonder just where he is at. He is the property of the league at the present time, and although he has been mentioned as a possibility for the Hamilton team, he has not been offered a contract by either team. Just where he will play must be decided at the league meeting, but Cleghorn has announced that he will play in Ottawa.

Willard comes here from the Toronto St. Patricks in exchange for Carpenter, the Port Arthur player, who was with Hamilton last season. Carry is anxious to play with St. Patricks and the Toronto team is said to be willing to exchange Randall for him.

TEX IS NOT BROKE

Making Money All the Time, Says Rickard—No Chance for Receiver

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—"I'm making money all the time, and no receiver is going to handle my affairs," said Tex Rickard, the world-famous promoter of championship prizefights, to the petition of Frank C. Armstrong that Rickard be required to show cause why his business should not be placed in a receiver's hands.

Armstrong is a Broadway broker. He and Rickard have been having trouble for some time over a claim for an interest in the Madison Square Garden fight club. Rickard claimed to be the sole owner of the club, although he is associated in a business way with John Ringling, the circus man, who was said to have furnished much of the backing for the Dempsey-Carpenter fight.

Willard Is Slow In Signing Up

Now That He Has Struck Oil Is Not So Keen on Being Punched by Jack Dempsey—Rickard Impatient

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Arrangements for a return world's heavyweight championship bout between champion Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard, regarded as practically completed a few weeks ago, now appear on the verge of dissolution.

Promoter Tex Rickard, who planned the battle for July 1 next, in his arena in Jersey City, has exhibited impatience with Willard's delay in returning a signed contract for the battle. Reports

JOHNNY BUFF WINS FROM JACK SHARKEY

Judges' Decision Gave Bantam Titleholder the Fight After an Even Fifteen-Round Go at New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Johnny Buff, world's bantamweight boxing champion, retained his title tonight by obtaining a judges' decision over Jack Sharkey, of New York, at the end of their 15-round bout here.

Beaten in a number of the earlier rounds, Buff started a winning offensive in the twelfth round and by the power of his hitting turned the tide against the Italian-American. Buff punched Sharkey with a rush, but Sharkey's blows slowed him. He was staggered on numerous occasions, but recuperated quickly.

Sharkey had the better of five rounds, six went to Buff and four were even. Buff weighed 114 pounds and Sharkey 116 pounds.

MISS SAYWARD ELECTED TO CAPTAIN LADIES

Miss Sayward was elected the ladies' captain of the Colwood Golf and Country Club at a meeting held yesterday. Miss Noonan was elected secretary, and the following ladies were chosen to act on the committee: Mrs. Graham Graham, Mrs. Abel and Mrs. Willis.

It was decided to hold one medal competition a month, and members are required to hand in three score cards for the purpose of handicapping before December 7.

The next monthly medal competition will be held on December 13.

WORLD'S JUMP RECORD BROKEN AT PORTLAND

Edmonton Pony Clears Six Feet and Two Inches, Beating Former
Holder By Big Margin

PORTLAND, Nov. 10.—One world's record was broken in the first horse show matinee today at the eleventh annual Pacific International Livestock Exhibition according to announcements by show officials.

Corn Cob, ridden by his owner, J. Jarvis, of Edmonton, Alberta, topped the pole at six feet two inches. The record, that of the pony high jump for horses under 14.2 hands, was broken on the fourth trial.

The former record holder is the event, The Tank, owned and ridden by Hilda McCormick, of Vancouver, B.C. went out at five feet six inches.

More than $12,000 changed hands among Shorthorn breeders at the first pure-bred breeding stock sale of the exposition. Fifty-two Shorthorns, 26 bulls and 26 cows, picked up from some of the finest herds on exhibition, were disposed of, many fine animals being far below figures of former years.

MAN'S FINAL DESTINY

Father Bernard Vaughan, in a striking sermon recently urged his congregation to refuse to believe that man's final destiny was the dustbin.

He took as his subject Science, Philosophy and Religion, and pointed out that these three were slayers born of God, and so long as each minded his own business no quarrel could arise between them. He likened them to an underground, a surface and an overhead railway, all running on different planes so that there could be no real fear of collision, each going slowly into the same terminus and assisting one another. They thus formed a triple alliance for the good of mankind. It was the business of Science to deal with phenomena, to find out and present facts. It was the aim of Philosophy to investigate causes, and it was the duty of Religion to bring home to man his whence and his whither.

Passing to the consideration of initial life, Father Vaughan said Science knew nothing about it; all she really knew was that once the temperature of this earth was too high for life, but that when it cooled down life appeared—whence Science could not say. Philosophy, when asked what she could contribute to the problem, said she knew little about life in itself and nothing about its origin, except that some eternal being endowed with self-existence, must have stepped down on the inorganic world and breathed into its substance the breath of a life. Religion came in and told them that the Creator breathed into clay the breath of life and man became a living soul.

He also asked Science to tell when this earth was going to cease spinning on its axis, when men and life were going to cease? Science replied that it would gradually cool down and become too cold to support life. But what he wanted to know from Science was: What was it that died? With tears they watched the long-drawn-out procession moving to the cemetery, but was it man's body only or his soul also that was laid to rest in the grave? Science replied that as neither scalpel, microscope, nor test tube had yet discovered the human soul, she knew nothing about it; he province was to note phenomena, not to teach psychology. Philosophy declared there was something in man's nature which marked him off from the rest of creation, and Religion, having heard the verdict of both about man's destiny, proclaimed her belief in the resurrection of the body and life everlasting. "Refuse," said Father Vaughan, "to believe that man's final destiny is the dustbin and not a stardom where, steeped in life, shall partake of the Resurrection of light, and love, man, if found worthy, God everlasting."

VANCOUVER EXPERTS GO TO GOLD COAST

VANCOUVER, Nov. 10.—Two more experienced Canadian construction men will leave Vancouver immediately for London on their way to the Gold Coast in Africa, where harbor works and a railway are being built for the Imperial Government by J. W. Stewart & Co., of this city.

They are Thomas Moran and C. W. Arnett. Both these men have great experience. They gained their knowledge on railway construction and other gigantic contracts in the Western provinces.

ZBYSKO AND LEWIS TO MAUL EACH OTHER FOR DIAMOND BELT

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Stanislaus Zbysko, world champion wrestler, will defend his title against Ed (Strangler) Lewis at Madison Square Garden on November 24. Tex Rickard, promoter, will present the winner of the match with a diamond-studded belt.

McCleave Stable Wins at Portland

PORTLAND, Nov. 10.—J. D. Farrell, of Seattle, took honors in three events in Portland's annual horse show last night, his pole of chestnut hackneys, Princess of Nance and Prince of Nance, winning three blue ribbons and one red. The victories gave this pair a total of six firsts and three seconds for the three nights of showing, and put the Farrell stable in the lead.

Santa Monica, owned by Mrs. Winslow Anderson, of Pleasanton, Cal., won first honors in the combination three-gaited class. Mrs. C. B. Anderson's The Nobleman won first in the first-gaited saddle horse event. Mrs. Wayne W. Keeler, of Tacoma, got second with Hildare.

James McCleave, of Victoria, B.C., took first in the lightweight hunters of the class. Walter Spore, Jr., of Edmonton, Alta., won second with Domino.

THE SQUARED CIRCLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Al Roberts, New York heavyweight, was given the judges' decision over Herbert Creswell, of England, in a 12-round bout tonight. It was Creswell's first fight in this country.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 10.—Fred Fulton and Carl Morris have been matched to box 15 rounds here on November 22, before the Winnipeg Sporting Club.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 10.—Piedmont, a ten-round decision over Willie Capelli, of Los Angeles, here last night.

The preliminaries resulted as follows: Archie Stoy, Aberdeen, Wash., lightweight, won a six-round decision over Young Sam Langford, of Seattle; Frankie Britt, Tacoma, featherweight, won a six-round call over Jimmy Cole, of Cincinnati; and Billy Lang, of Seattle, featherweight, won in the second round on a foul over Jack Rose, of Denver.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Hert Collins, of San Francisco, received the judges' decision over George Shaden, also of San Francisco, at the end of their eight-round bout in Madison Square Garden tonight.

HOLLY SALE POPULAR

St. Columba Ladies' Association Proceeds of $412 From Yesterday's Undertaking

Holly mingled with the evergreens employed in the decoration of St. Columba Church schoolroom for their sale Wednesday afternoon, and a very festive effect was enhanced by the big crowd of buyers which thronged the hall during the day. Mrs. M. J. Moore, who was introduced by the pastor, Rev. Mr. McConnell, in a short speech, commended the ladies for their untiring efforts in preparing for the undertaking, and hoped it was but the beginning of a bigger work.

The Young People's Society had charge of the tea arrangements, and made a big financial success of this end of the undertaking. Mrs. Moore's effort was heartily appreciated, an expression of thanks being voiced by Mrs. McConnell, seconded by Mrs. Kemp, accompanied by flowers.

The proceeds from the successful affair amounted to $412. The following had charge of the stalls:

Flowers—Mrs. McConnell, Miss Small; bazaar—Mrs. McNeil, Mrs. Parr; apothecary—Mrs. Elliott, Miss Gardner; Mrs. Gardner; fancy work—Mrs. T. McConnell, Mrs. Gelling, Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. Henry McKee; candy—Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Burnell; groceries—Mrs. Meade, Mrs. McNeill; refreshment—Mrs. Irwin, Miss Robertson; home cooking—Mrs. Eddie, Mrs. Sturrock; Mrs. Rhythe; Young People—Mrs. Forrest; tea—Mrs. Kemp, Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. McInnes, Mrs. Coulson.

COLONIST BASKETERS WIN FROM J.B.A.A.

Thrilling Game Was Won by Forty to Thirty-Six—Bays
Were in the Lead at Half-Time

Last night at the J.B.A.A. gymnasium The Colonist newsmen took the Bays into camp, and beat them 40-36. The game was fast and exciting from start to finish, and when half-time was called the Bays were leading 24-22. Bouncing in the second half, The Colonist boys staged a determined rally, and with fast playing soon overtook the Bays and won by a small margin.

The game was clean throughout. Bothwell replaced Grice in the second half, owing to a slight accident. Vetch was responsible for 18 points. Harold 14 points, Bothwell 6, Grice 2. The Bays' points were scored by Allen, Heiland and Watson.

The teams were:
Bays—Allen, Hartley, Watson, McLachlan, and Heiland.
Colonist—Harold, Vetch, Bothwell, Grice, Caldwell and Thomas.

On Saturday night, November 19, The Colonist will journey to Saanichton to meet the Saanichton all-stars. After the match the visiting team will be entertained to supper, and a dance will follow later. The game will commence at 8 o'clock sharp.

lition to bring home to man his whence and his whither.

Passing to the consideration of initial life, Father Vaughan said Science knew nothing about it; all she really knew was that once the temperature of this earth was too high for life, but that when it cooled down life appeared—whence Science could not say. Philosophy, when asked what she could contribute to the problem, said she knew little about life in itself and nothing about its origin, except that some eternal being endowed with self-existence, must have stepped down on the inorganic world and breathed into its substance the breath of a life. Religion came in and told them that the Creator breathed into clay the breath of life and man became a living soul.

He also asked Science to tell when this earth was going to cease spinning on its axis, when men and life were going to cease? Science replied that it would gradually cool down and become too cold to support life. But what he wanted to know from Science was: What was it that died? With tears they watched the long-drawn-out procession moving to the cemetery, but was it man's body only or his soul also that was laid to rest in the grave? Science replied that as neither scalpel, microscope, nor test tube had yet discovered the human soul, she knew nothing about it; he province was to note phenomena, not to teach psychology. Philosophy declared there was something in man's nature which marked him off from the rest of creation, and Religion, having heard the verdict of both about man's destiny, proclaimed her belief in the resurrection of the body and life everlasting. "Refuse," said Father Vaughan, "to believe that man's final destiny is the dustbin and not a stardom where, steeped in life, shall partake of the Resurrection of light, and love, man, if found worthy, God everlasting."

DOMINION An actor with the shrewdness of a stockbroker—the most "capitalistic figure" on the screen—that is a tucker impression of Joseph Kilgour, who plays a leading role in Thomas H. Ince's drama, "Mother o' Mine," at the Dominion Theatre all week. Some years ago Kilgour owned a seat on the Chicago Stock Exchange and when he appears on the silver-sheet as a financial king, which he does more often than not, he is playing at what was once a serious business with him, just as when he first appeared in amateur theatricals in famous Chicago clubs he was playing at what has since become his most cherished work and study. The nimble secured a hold on Mr. Kilgour when he was engaged to play the part of George Washington in a version of the first president's life then being filmed by Vitaphone, because of his remarkable ability to approximate the postage stamp likeness of him. Mr. Kilgour did not appear again on the screen for more than five years. The last stage play in which he took part lasted only five nights, and numerous and persistent attractive offers influenced him to definitely cast his lot with the silent drama.

ROYAL During the filming of VICTORIA "The Revenge of Tarzan," which will be shown again today at the Royal Victoria Theatre, ten days were spent on yacht and lifeboat scenes, one of which entailed the burning of a large yacht following an explosion. The scene proved to be more hazardous than the script called for. One of the lifeboats capsized, and the director and two of the actors were forced to spend an uncomfortable half-hour struggling in the water. "The Revenge of Tarzan," the thrilling sequel to "Tarzan of the Apes" by Edgar Rice Burroughs, was produced by the Numa Pictures Corporation and is being distributed by Goldwyn. With a good Christie comedy, "Man va Woman," and a slow motion golf picture, showing how the game should be played, the programme of pictures has been well looked after. Miss Ivy Holt will again be heard in two new songs that will no doubt please any audience.

CAPITOL Duck Island, off the Atlantic Coast, became a saving life recently for the purposes of "Cappy Ricks," the Peter B. Kyne story filmed by Paramount for Thomas Meighan, which comes to the Capitol Theatre today again. The beach was lined with plantain palms made in the scenic department of the Long Island studio. When the boat chartered by Paramount anchored in the little harbor and sent a party of men ashore they were surrounded by naked savages (from Hawaii) and Captain Peter, captain of the boat, was killed by a blow from a bolo. Hundreds of artificial palm and plantain trees were built for the scene, and sunk in the sand on the beach. Tom Forman and his cameraman sat in a small boat, shooting the action from across a stretch of water.

COLUMBIA A country store will be the chief feature at the Columbia Theatre tonight. Many useful articles will be given away free to every person who buys a ticket. More than a hundred prizes, well selected, which are useful to anyone. Each person on entering the theatre will be given a programme which will entitle them to any article to which they are called upon to respond. In addition to the country store, a splendid feature starring Harry Carey in "Hearts Up," also a good comedy and a topical film, Eddie Polo in "The King of the Circus." No advance in prices.

PRESS CABINET ON UNEMPLOYMENT

valued in the larger centre. The Premier argued that the time has come when the Government must be careful in its borrowing powers, and he suggested there was a possibility that the Province might find itself in a similar financial position to that of South Vancouver.

After the lengthiest debate of the session so far, Mr. Neelands motion that the House resolve itself into committee of the whole to consider the question of unemployment was approved, but when the mover, having achieved that object, jumped into the fray to urge that an immediate appropriation of $500,000 be made to meet the situation, the point was raised by the Premier that such a motion, calling for the expenditure of public money, was out of order unless advanced by a member of the Government and the debate was adjourned by Mr. Samuel Guthrie, Socialist member for Newcastle.

Looks for Suggestions Resuming the debate on the subject, Premier Oliver said, he had listened with a great deal of interest to the remarks made on the previous day on the subject of unemployment. He had also looked forward to hearing some suggestions, but the only suggestion was that the Government should borrow more money and put men to work.

In the years 1913-14 conditions as regarded employment were very bad in South Vancouver. Many of the men fit for military service went overseas, but the conditions of unemployment did not disappear. The municipality had been one in which workmen had been concentrated and it showed, perhaps, the greatest percentage of unemployment in the Province. It had borrowed largely and the money had largely been spent in developing real estate and in putting roads where no people were living and with no people to pay for living and Works Started During the present year, in South Vancouver, works of a non-revenue producing nature had been carried on the way of state works and the putting down of sewers and to such an extent that the municipality found itself with an overdraft of $200,000. Yet in the face of this fact, Mr. Oliver said, he had five hundred new houses been put up during the summer, despite unemployment having become chronic.

Turning to refer to statements made by Canon Hinchliffe to the effect that he had found that the vast majority of men engaged in construction work on the P.O.R., were not citizens of the Province, he said that almost exclusively a foreign element prepared to engage in this work, the Premier said it was clear that the Government had been carrying on work in this Province for men who were largely foreigners, and it had become demonstrated that this class of labor was not going to work out as a success.

Large sums of money had been advanced in different parts of the Province, all along the line, for the purpose of employment and, at the time, in a manner which would be the future, the Premier said, the department was spending public works dollars, most of which went in material phase, the fact that the Government had been borrowing money every year, which money had been expended in such a way that the vast bulk of it had gone in labor. It was now, to his mind, a question as to how long the Government could continue to do this.

Government's Duty Whether it was the intention of the Premier to discuss the matter from a political angle, Mr. Oliver did not know, but the leader of the opposition maintained, it was the duty of the present situation to meet not alone but also all other matters of employment. Mr. Oliver admitted he was interested in the matter, following the Premier's remarks, he formerly as to the Government's policy, whether the Government had accepted the offer of the Conservative opposition to the independent members for bringing the matter before the House, stating that the present unemployment question is not a new one. He suggested explicit in his expression of what the Government has done. Every intelligent citizen knew that the problem would be serious in the winter months. The Premier had complained of the situation in South Vancouver, but it was no different there than in other portions of the Province.

For the Premier to harass the residents of South Vancouver and say they had no right to go into the centre and make their homes was merely barking the question.

Government Must Lead "It is for the Government of the day, in charge of public affairs, and in a position to borrow money to an unlimited amount, to deal with every situation as it arises," declared Mr. Oliver, who said he was ready to agree with the Premier that the Province had finally arrived at much the same financial position as South Vancouver through reckless extravagance.

For the Premier to argue that the fear the unemployment situation may become more chronic, the Government must grant no assistance was absurd. Was the Province to be developed if these people were to be discouraged to come here, he asked. Referring to the Premier's statement that it was an account of the unemployment that the Department of Industries Act was passed, Mr. Oliver declared he had always believed that nine per cent of the loans made under that measure would be a loss. To say that the Land Settlement policy was designed for a similar purpose was absurd, if ever there had been a misappropriation of public money it was in connection with the Merville and other soldier settlement schemes. The same applied to the loans to farmers. The Government's policy had been to aid the farmers under the present settlement plan, a million had been spent and what was there to show for it, he asked. He referred to the British reclamation scheme and the public works expenditures as being in the same category—millions wasted. Instead of carrying on public works in the summer when a dollar's value could be secured for a dollar spent, the Government had cut off such work on the pretence of saving to meet the unemployment situation in the winter.

Criticizes Policy "We know that expenditure was cut off. The Government had no money. Had it carried on the work in the summer the workers could have saved a grub stake for the winter. The Premier, as a practical man, knew that in the great section in the interior work cannot be carried on in the winter. Then why should he deceive the people that work had been cut off on July 1 to permit the winter work, when he knows he had no money on that date?" asked Mr. Bowser, who held that under existing conditions the State must take action. He referred to the Premier and the Attorney-General going to Vancouver to discuss unemployment and the former suggesting to the employers that they must face the situation. There was no doubt the employers would do so fairly because they did not wish to see unemployment, but to blame them for the condition of affairs when they were probably facing overdrafts owing to lack of markets for their normal product, was as absurd as blaming the Premier as to why the Government had not done this duty.

This Government and Legislature must face the situation in which it is. He declared the Opposition leader, who asserted that if there are people wanting bread the Government cannot sit still and claim the State must take borrowing powers to the limit and that if it goes further the Province will be in the same position as South Vancouver, said that the Premier, who declared the Government has nothing to show it has come to any decision in the matter.

Some Suggestions Relative to the Premier's question as to where the Government is to secure funds to deal with the unemployed, the Opposition leader suggested the work on the $400,000 court house at Prince Rupert could well be stopped; that the bringing into effect of the change in the rule of the road might be postponed for a year, thereby saving $400,000 to be paid to the B.C. Electric Company, and there could be a drastic cut in overhead cost of administration. If it were not too late, he might suggest that the $150,000 for the Campbell warehouse might well be saved. Also there was the case of the University of B.C. He recalled the Kilwinnie was his statement that the Premier had approached the University on the matter of extending the University, and had made some valuable suggestions to that end.

A Forgotten Move Mr. Bowser recalled the statement made by a member of the Government that bonds to the amount of one million for university purposes were to be sold in the Province, but nothing had been done. The university people were no wiser now than before that statement was made. The Premier had said that the Government was not going to do anything for the unemployed, he stated; some assurance of assistance, or may it be refused to help.

Mr. G. H. Haines, North Vancouver, suggested that the Government might set forth something in the coming budget for the unemployment situation. He referred to a delegation of unemployed men at North Vancouver and asking what the Government proposed to do. What had the Premier meant, he asked, in saying that the Government might be disposed to consider paying one-third of the excess cost of carrying on public works over the normal cost? Was it not a fact, he asked, that the Government had cut wages of working men by 75 cents a day. If that cut still prevailed it could be assumed that the Government was not going to do anything for the unemployed. He stated that one-third of the excess cost? The unemployed are in a serious position, stated Mr. Haines, and the least the Government should do was to assist the unemployed in the least possible way. ADVENTURES OF
OIL PROSPECTOR

Correspondence London Times

Chance, the mistress of the wanderer, took me last winter from Fort Yukon, Alaska, to Fort Norman, N. W. T., Canada, in search of fortune in the shape of oil. In September, 1920, a big "gusher" of light oil of exceedingly high quality was found on the bank of the Mackenzie River, 18 miles below Fort Norman. That town, looking impossible as it does on the map, would surprise anyone unacquainted with the northern trading posts. Three stores, each a small log building as large as the country laborer's cottage in England, one church, Roman Catholic, very little bigger, and, far uglier, another church, abandoned in disgust and in process of decay; half-a-dozen tiny cabins belonging to Indians and left empty all winter—these form the whole of Fort Norman. It stands on the high bank of the river where the Mackenzie is joined by Great Bear River, which flows from Great Bear Lake, 80 miles to the north. The Mackenzie stretch mountain ranges on each side, those near of no great height, but the main range of the Rockies in full view, 180 miles away. Bear Mountain, three miles across Bear River and sloping right into the Mackenzie, is a fine rock from which a magnificent view can be obtained. With this view as our goal, therefore, three of us started on January 8 of this year on a 1,100 mile walk, with a sled and team of dogs.

Up the Porcupine River we travelled for a month, going north-east. In the month was included 10 days in going back into the mountains for some rotten salmon for dog feed, left there in the summer. We crossed the Alaska-Yukon boundary about 250 miles on our journey. On about February 1 we left the friendly smooth ice of the Porcupine and started across country. It had been bitterly cold for the past week, well below -80 deg. all the time. Tracks of moose and caribou were everywhere, the country was swarming with game, but in such cold weather it is hopeless to hunt them, as sound travels easier on the coldest days and the sharp-scented moose would keep his distance from our betraying footfall.

For four days we struggled across the foothills of the mountains and reached a creek, the head of which lay up against the main divide. The snow was deep; the inclines were steep, our feet sore, our knees aching, our dogs tired, and we were all glad to meet an Indian, an old friend, who told us where to find a cache of moose meat which he had left. The cache was in the last timber, where our final camping place would be before crossing the divide. We lay up a day there and gave our dogs a big feed. Poor devils, they needed it, but nothing to what was yet to come. Next day we crossed the divide. We had a 30 mile run between timber and timber which we had to make in the seven hours' daylight. The thermometer stood at 10 deg. below zero, but the wind was not strong and luckily in our backs.

I need not dwell on the labor of hauling our sleds on the top of the mountain, which the dogs could not do alone, or the crossing of the summit over a sloping glacier with a bottomless pit below. Then a wild rush down the other side, sitting on the sled, running over the dogs, upsetting every few seconds, all on snow as hard as ice and as bumpy as frost-cracked rock. There were 30 miles to do that day, not a long distance, but an arduous run, and we were all pretty well played out when we made camp that night.

In two days we were at Fort Macpherson, on Peel River, a trading post ruled and governed by Mr. John Firth, of the Hudson's Bay Company. Mr. Firth has been at Peel River for 50 years, having gone there straight from his birthplace in the Orkneys. He holds a gold medal for long and faithful service, and retired this year from the business, but continues to live at Macpherson.

We found great difficulty in getting what we wanted in the way of dog feed, but we got three nights' supply for a starter on a month's journey. We also were told of a lake, said now to get to it, where some Indians had over a thousand green (fresh) whitefish. In three days we reached the place, a great lake unmarked on any map, to the east of the Mackenzie. There we found a large family of Indians and 50 fish, which were their sole diet. There was a Roman Catholic priest at Arctic Red River, with 10,000 dried fish in cache, but the truly Christian man failed to see any benefit possible coming to his flock by helping unfortunate travellers. He flatly refused to let us have a single fish.

Nevertheless, the Indian at the big lake, who could speak no word of English, gave us every fish he could spare, which left him very little indeed. The untaught savage apparently knows enough to help those in trouble, to his own disadvantage, but it seems that the culture of the missionary causes him to help himself alone to the disadvantage of others.

After that, life was a nightmare. All day long struggling over the rough ice, which is like great boulders of rock of all dimensions, from 2 ft. to 20 ft. thick, piled anyhow and covered by a blanket of soft snow.

Camping in the Snow
All day we heaved and tugged and pushed and fell and cursed, and at night sometimes we took three hours to make camp, frequently having to leave our sleds on the ice and haul our stuff up the steep, high bank, to the miserable little hole in the snow in which we slept. For a good camp one must have plenty of young green trees from which to cut boughs, and plenty of dry wood for fire. The Mackenzie River is extremely short of dry (dead) wood, and sometimes we would walk a mile and come back with only one stick.

After three days our dog feed gave out, and next night we fed them on our spare socks and the caribou skins on which we slept. They were not very nourishing, but something to go inside the poor brutes and stop the awful craving for tidbits. We kept going on, wondering if we ever should "make it," or if we should have to kill our dogs, lighten our loads, and haul the sleds ourselves. We found a little cabin on a high bare bank, nicely built, obviously the work of a white man. We broke the lock, and, joy of salvation, we found two boxes of dried fish and a sack of flour. That night we feasted exceedingly. We had enough food and dog feed to take us through to Fort Good Hope on the Habbit Skin River, where we could get some more. We felt so hilarious that when one of us upset the beans into the fire the other two never even cursed him.

But conditions were not so pleasant during the next five days. We had a head wind all the time. On a river like the Mackenzie, which is from three to six miles wide throughout its length, the wind blows pretty freely. The river is 54 miles wide just above the delta. When we reached Good Hope we were extremely glad to sit beneath a roof with a warm stove, a stranger to talk to, and someone else to do the cooking.

The journey from Good Hope to Norman was more pleasant. We were feeding our dogs on tallow as we could get it, but they held up, and we had fairly good camping places. The few days' wind had hardened the snow in some parts, and made travelling better. We pulled into Norman on March 15 at nearly midnight and were made very welcome by the trader for the Northern Trading Company, a rival concern of the Hudson's Bay Company, and one supplying excellent material to the buyer.

In the Bush
We spent the next three months out in the bush in hunting and claims, killing muskrats and fish for our dogs, and making a map of the country, hitherto absolutely unknown. When the spring came, we started early, with our millions of ducks and geese flying northward to nest, it caught us out in the bush, away from the river, without food or the prospect of getting any, and 40 odd miles from Norman. We were continually wet, from our soles to our waist, with the melting snow. We crossed the river at a place about six miles wide on the rotten ice. Continually falling through and clambering out again, it was not a pleasant crossing.

It was then four days' dreary walk up the bank. Sometimes ploughing through deep melting snow, sometimes wallowing in mud, sometimes the bank would be too steep, and we would take to the brush till the dense undergrowth of matted spruce and willow drove us out again. Sometimes we would take five hours to cover a mile. Meanwhile the ducks and geese were flying overhead in millions, and the roar of their voices was like a surf far away and a parrot house near at hand. Snow geese, white waders, grey geese, laughing geese, brant, ducks of every description, sort, and size, but what we noticed mostly was the extraordinarily edible look there was about them (we had no gun). How fat those geese looked, and how we cursed the generous impulse to give our gun to the luckless half-breed who had lost his in an explosion. We finally got back to Norman, over-ate ourselves for two days, and then set to work to build a boat in which to go down river and out the same way as we went in. On June 1 we said good-bye to Norman, and by July 10 we were on the Vancouver steamer from Skagway, Alaska, bound for Trondheim and Edmonton, where we were to record our oil claims.

A Contrast
I sit here in a comfortable chair in a warm room, smoking Russian cigarettes and full of an excellent meal. The other life seems a kind of dream, as if it must have been on a different planet, yet sometimes it seems only yesterday that I was struggling over the Arctic divide, hauling frantically on the headline of my sled, rattling across a swollen river mouth on a cake of rotten ice, starving in the snow, boiling up a piece of raw hide from the sled and looking forward to eating it with great satisfaction, struggling over the rough ice on the 500 miles of Mackenzie River, sore feet, frozen face, and aching knees.

Then this life at home in Great Britain seems to be a farce, a thing to amuse children, a round of pretence and false appearances. Men struggle to make money for women to spend on adorning themselves to attract other men; amusements to become an occupation and therefore cease to amuse; eating and drinking and never thinking of the poor devils who go hungry to sleep.

Surely this is not the summit of life. Anyway, what is the end? "The path of glory lead but to the grave."

I can look back and think with a quickening of the blood of the other life and the real life it offers. Hunting the bull moose in his native place (alone), seeing the countless millions of caribou in their fall migration, sleeping under the stars in the Arctic Winter, watching the Northern Lights dancing in an eerie incandescent arc; packing over the mountains with the mosquitoes so thick they blind and choke and sting you crazy unless you wear your head net.

That is real life. To stand on a mountain and survey on all sides a mighty land unbroken by man, to find undiscovered lakes and country and go on, not knowing what will come next.

"Something hidden, go and find it. Go and look behind the ranges, something lost behind the ranges, lost and waiting for you. Go!"

Kipling's explorer was every explorer, if not in detail. He gets something that makes up for the lack of pink tea, boiled shirts, and the boudoir of the fair. Though you may despise him, Mr. City Man, before you vent your contempt, consider what he thinks of you.

BUDGET TODAY

Annual Speech of Minister of Finance Will Result in Public Taxation Proposed

This afternoon Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, will deliver his annual budget speech in the Legislature.

Chief interest in the speech covers the financial proposals of the Government relative to new taxation to meet the deficiency occasioned by the grant of additional financial aid to the municipalities.

Undoubtedly there will be a large gallery when Hon. Mr. Hart rises to speak. Coincident with the budget speech will be presented the estimates of expenditure for the ensuing year. There will be shown no reduction in outlays for current or extraordinary expenditure.

More than four years is required for light to reach the earth from the nearest fixed star.

SINN FEIN TRIES TO KEEP TRUCE

Mr. Lloyd George, in Reply to Question, Credits It With Faithful Efforts—Agreement to Give Notice

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Premier Lloyd George expressed confidence in the House today that the Sinn Fein negotiators were doing all they could to see that the terms of the truce in Ireland were observed.

Answering questions on the Irish situation, Mr. Lloyd George reiterated his hope that the Irish negotiations would prove successful. With regard to violations of the truce, as to which he also was queried, he said:

"I view with grave concern the breaches of the truce that occur in Ireland." They are at once taken up through the representatives of the Sinn Fein with whom we are negotiating, and who are doing the best they can to observe the terms of the truce."

In reply to a question as to whether adequate arrangements had been made for the protection of Ulster and the loyal population of Southern Ireland in the event of a breakdown of the negotiations, Mr. Lloyd George replied:

"It has been agreed that if the negotiations unhappily should break down there would be a reasonable notice of the termination of the truce, and His Majesty's Government would, of course, do all in their power to protect life and property. It is not desirable to make any statement regarding measures the Government would have taken and are prepared to take, but that contingency, I hope, will not arise."

This statement was greeted by enthusiastic cheers.

SOLDIERS CAN SELL
LAND TO CIVILIANS

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 10.—Sale of lands held by soldiers under the Soldier Settlement Board scheme will be permitted hereafter, in certain cases, to civilians.

Hitherto a soldier who wished to dispose of his land was compelled to find another soldier to purchase it. The change in the rule is announced by Mr. W. G. McQuarrie, former M.P.

Prominent Lumberman Dies
VANCOUVER, Nov. 10.—H. L. Jenkins, a native of Leavenworth, Indiana, and head of the North American Lumber Company, died today in his fifty-first year. He had lived in Vancouver for the last twenty years.

Have No Agreements
LONDON, Nov. 10.—"There does not exist any military or naval agreement, understanding or arrangement of any sort between England and Japan not arising from the terms of the Anglo-Japanese treaty," said Premier Lloyd George in the House of Commons today.

Stuart Lake Settlement
VANCOUVER, Nov. 10.—Arrangements have been concluded by the Battenbury Land Company here whereby fifty families from the United States will settle in the Stuart Lake district of British Columbia next Spring. It is announced under the Provincial settlement policy.

Discovery in Russian Office
CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 10.—Important documents were seized and millions of Romanoff rubles, together with considerable French and British money, were discovered by inter-Allied police in a raid on the offices of the Russian Trade Mission here today.

$30,000

The Man Who Saves

At age 19 his bills exceed his income.

At age 21 his Canada Life Policy creates an estate and saves his money.

At age 35 his "bills" include a "premium due," which, while counted as an expense, is really a saving.

At age 50 he can "spend" anything in reason.

At age 60 he has no anxiety for the future, and leisure for his many interests.

can be more easily saved than most people imagine

If you look ahead you can easily picture how useful $30,000 would be to you. If you were to start in and save $200 each six months and let it compound at 5 1/2% you would have that substantial sum in 30 years, but—you know of many people who could have set aside this amount, yet who are still "drudging along."

You know yourself how hard it is to save cash. Human nature is such that very few people allow ready money to remain untouched for any length of time.

The Canada Life Plan

Provides that any sum you name will be delivered to you in cash at any age you desire, or to your beneficiary should you die in the meantime.

You see by this Plan how an IMMEDIATE ESTATE is created in event of death—the full face value of the insurance policy. At one stride you anticipate years of effort, you capitalize your present health and earning power, you make certain of many years of progress now. Take, for instance, an issued by the Canada Life. It makes saving money attractive, systematic and very profitable.

Endowment at 65

You can be certain that the full amount will be paid in any case whether you live or not. Other investments may fail—the Canada Life Endowment is a certainty. It will take care of your home, your business, your children's future, or yourself, as nothing else can.

Profits Will Hasten Maturity

If the profits are allowed to remain each year instead of being withdrawn and spent, a special clause provides that the face value of the policy will be paid some time well in advance of the due date.

Regular saving, an immediate estate, substantial profits, absolute safety—this is a combination that you should look into today.

DON'T TAKE YEAST
WITHOUT IRON!

Both Are Necessary for Best Results—Thousands Now Take Ironized Yeast in Convenient Tablet Form.

Run-down, weak and thin people, who were eating yeast for health, have found that yeast brings far better and quicker results when it is taken with iron. Through this splendid combination of tonic, now embodied in Ironized Yeast, folks who for years suffered with loss of strength, nervousness, anaemia, thinness and other "run-down" conditions, are regaining glowing health and strength almost as if by magic. This is because Ironized Yeast supplies run-down bodies with just the elements they need—vitamins and iron. These two substances have been found absolutely essential to good health. Yet the modern diet, in many cases, is almost entirely lacking in them. No wonder so many thousands of men and women become sickly, run-down, and old before their time. Ironized Yeast is performing what seems like miracle cures wherever it is taken. In many cases it brings a noticeable improvement in two or three days. Enjoy the clear skin, sparkling eyes, rugged strength and health of youth! Get Ironized Yeast today! Sold at all ages. Each contains 18 days' treatment and costs only one dollar—just the price of a day's or no more per dose than ordinary yeast. Special directions for children in each package. Made by the Ironized Yeast Company, Atlanta, Ga. Sold by all good druggists. (Adv.)

STOCK MARKET ACTIVE AND PRICES VARIABLE

Advances Are Practically Canceled When Profit Taking Sets In—Money Reverses Its Usual Course

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Trading in stocks today was unusually active for a pre-holiday session, but the greater part of the business continued to centre in speculative issues, further profit-taking causing an irregular to heavy tone.

Oils, secondary steels, coppers and kindred base metals, chemicals and the cheaper motors and their specialties overshadowed all other issues, but gains of variable extent were largely or wholly cancelled later.

Railroads manifested occasional restraint as the result of the pressure directed against certain favorites, including Great Northern and Northern Pacific.

Sales were $25,000 shares. Reversing its usual course, the money opened with a firm tone, call loans being at 5-7 1/2 per cent. This rate was reduced to 5 per cent before the close, and time funds were in better supply.

Dealings in foreign exchange were small aside from purchases of sterling and Paris bills. The Italian rate continued to decline, and German marks lost much of yesterday's recovery.

Liberty issues closed at moderate gains and losses. Total sales of bonds, $16,875,000.
